CONVENTION WORK YESTERDAY.

Correspondence of The Telegram.

High Point, Feb. 21.—Beautiful indeed are fitting words to describe the wedding solemnized in the First Presbyterian church last evening at six o'clock, when Mr. Frederick George Barbee, one of our popular young men, led to the hymenal altar Miss Bertha Augusta Snow, the sweet and accomplished daughter of Mr. Earnest A. Snow, a prominent business man of this place.

The popularity of the contracting parties was manifested by the large audience present—the church was crowded to its utmost capacity.

The wedding was a white, blue and pink affair, and bunting and flowers of these colors were tastily arranged, which was augmented by beautiful hot house flowers of varieagated colors. Ivy, cedar, and other evergreens, which, tinged with the soft and mellow light from various candelabra and incandescent burners, produced a most beautiful and lovely effect.

The ushers that seated the large audience were: Messrs. C C. Barbee, Junius Burton, R. J. Fayle, Chas. Hauser. The ribbon girls were Misses Winnie Snow, (sister of the bride) and Nina Wheeler. Masters Robt. Benbini and Lawrence White acted as pages. The bridesmaids were Misses Pearl Van Lindley, of Pomona, Ethel Diffee, Deborah Tomlinson, Cora Cox and Messrs. Alvin Parker, Homer Wheeler, W. C. Jones and Will Snow, (brotner of the bride) constituted the gentlemen attendants. The gentleman of honor was Mr. J. E wood Cox; the maids of honor, Miss Helen Snow, (sister of the bride) first; Miss Anna Burton, second.

Just before the entry of the bridal party a bridal chorus, from Lohengrin, was rendered by the choir, composed of Mr. A. L Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. R. Brown and Miss Lucy Eshelman.

Mendelssohn's sweet and entrancing wedding march was played by Miss Bertha Donnelly, of Charlotte.

The bride was attired in white silk, with tulle veil and carried brides' roses. She looked exceedingly sweet and happy.

The first maid of honor, Miss Helen Snow, was dressed in blue silk and carried white carnations; the second maid of honor wore a dress of pink silk and also carried carnations. The bridesmaids were dressed in white organdy and carried carnations, the color of which was pink. All looked very pretty in their respective costumes.

The bride and groom left on the 7:05 p. m. train for Savanah, Ga, to spend part of their honeymoon, carrying with them the very best wishes of their host of friends in this and adjoining States.

The presents received were unusually large in number and very handsome They consisted of silver and gold articles, chinaware, fine linen, suits of furniture, hall racks, iron bedsteads, china closets, dining chairs, rocking chairs, dinner sets and more valuable than all (as money consideration), a deed to the bride (from her father), for a house and lot on Russell street.

As the bride and groom were getting on the train they were profusely showered with rice by their friends who had congregated to bid them good bye.

Among those in attendance from a distance were the Misses Moffit, of Lexington, Miss Craven, of Concord, Mrs. W. J. Armfield, Jr., of Asheboro; Miss Donnelly, of Charlotte, Miss Pearl Lindley, Pomona.

High Point sent a de egation to Raleigh today to protest against the proposed revenue measure introduced recently. Our manufacturers and business men are a unit for abolishing such a scheme to deter the progress and growth of the manufacturing interests in the State.

The State Sunday School Convention, now in session here, grows in interest and size. Every train brings additional delegates. Early this morning the clerk reported 142 delegates present and quite a number have arrived since. The morning hours were taken up with work of secretaries illustrating their work on black-board and otherwise.

Prof. E. O. Excell arrived on the morning train from Danville and led the music. The house was well filled at the morning session. A committee on next place of meeeting was appointed.

The afternoon meeting was devoted to primary exercises. The first hour was taken up with a song service, led by Prof. Excell.

Mrs H. M. Hamill made a very interesting talk on the work. She was followed by Rev. B. W. Spillman with a short and well delivered address. Mr. Spillman was quite witty at times and elicited smiles from the audience.

Mr. Marion Lawrence, secretary, was the last speaker. He made an excellent talk and at different periods of his address illustrated some points that he wished to instill in the hearts and minds of those present.

The next meeting of the assiociation will be held in Fayetteville,

Tonight the first half hour service was taken up with song service conducted by Prof. Excel at 8 o'clock. A number of the international party spoke from the subject "The Book We Teach." This was a timely production

At 8:45 Mrs. Hamill began speaking on "Teaching and Training of Children." This was a most excellent speech and the speaker was given the closest of attention.

Besides the distinguished members of the international party present there is here an Armenian from Constantinople

Two from Rockingham.

Colonel Ec Lyon was telling two good ones this morning which he heard over in Rockingham. One was the remarks made by a citizen of that county when the Spanish War broke out. He said he wasn't in favor of that war and he wasn't agwine to valentine to go, and if they grafted him, he lowed to send an institute.

The other, says the Colonel, occured during the small pox scare when the government expert had come down and made an examination, and among other things, had the water analyzed. The remark was that the "gov'ment had sent a skeptic to Reidsville and he scandalized the water and found it mixed all up with two-thirds of hydrophobia." The Colonel is willing to make oath as to the accuracy of these curiosities of speech.

The Independent and Invincible

Hotel Clegg has gotten out a neat little card, on one side of which is printed the distance from Greensboro to different points, and on the other side a membership blank of the Greensboro Lodge of the Independent Order of Invincible Buffaloes. When a new member joins the order, after being initiated, he is given a membership card signed by the Grand Bison and countersigned by the Chief Pencil Pusher, after which he is a full-fledged Buffalo and may enjoy all the privileges of that order.

Prof. Claxton to Lecture.

On next Monday evening, February 25th, West Market Street Epworth League will give the third of their series of literary meetings.

The League has been so fortunate as to secure Prof. P. P. Claxton for a lecture on this occasion, and will be glad to have all their friends hear him. His subject will be announced later.

ANOTHER ASSAULT ON AVENUE.

He Met Three Negroes Who Took Off His Coats and Rifled His Pockets, All the Time Threatening to Brain Him.

Summit Avenue is rapidly becoming a rendevous for footpads. Only a few nights ago Mr Sternberger was assaulted by unknown negroes, and last night another man was held up.

Mr. Edward Duffy, the florist who looks after Mr. Ceasar Cone's greenhouse, lives in the northern part of the city. Last night he had occasion to return to Mr. Cone's after dark to attend to some plants, and it was about ten o'clock when he left on his return home. Soon after leaving Mr. Cone's, and while passing over that portion of the avenue not yet built up, Mr. Duffy met three negroes. One of them suddenly pushed him into the arms of the others, one of whom seized him while the other threatened to brain him did he make any outcry. His overcoat and top coat were taken off and his pockets rifled of a dollar and ten cents—all the money he had on his person. His two coats were kept by the negroes who, after looking through the pockets, probably threw the garments away.

Mr. Duffy returned to Mr. Cone's and borrowed a coat, after which he came to police headquarters and reported the occurrence.

RIGHTS OF LAY MEMBERS.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

Present conditions suggest the enquiry—do lay members of churches and political parties have rights and feelings that should be respected by those in authority over them?

Churches coming first in order, I remark that it is encouraging to know that the affirmative is true in some churches, and it is to be hoped that this happy condition will remain—but the signs of the times indicate the contrary in the fact that "the man in the pulpit" already too often disregards the feelings, if not the rights of the layman. The priest ridden people of the dark ages did not become so instantly, but were gradually reduced to it by yielding their rights little by little to ecclesiastical bigots who later became their oppressors.

Will any one gainsay that in North Carolina a church can be pointed out today whose ministers, some of them, are cruelly disregardful of the feelings and rights of their bretheren in rank and file? It matters not if they pay their part to the support of the church and otherwise contribute to the Master's cause, their feelings count for nothing in the mind of "the man in the pulpit" when he issues a decree concerning them. He cares not how badly he wounds one of the humble laymen, or even ninety-five per cent of them, though many of them appeal to him hoping to escape the bitter humiliation the decree imposes.

To detail the many conditions that point to danger along this line will be the purpose of future articles on this subject. The mercy of God, a free press and freedom of speech constitute the hope of the people against the present tendency of a return to the evils of the ecclesiastical bigotry of the dark ages and their trust is not misplaced.

Only one simile to close this article, viz: A preacher is called to preach to a people who pay him $2,000 salary. They expect him to do their preaching and have a right to expect it when his health permits him. They love and esteem him greatly and evidence the fact by filling the pews at every service, and in many other ways. But time after time, without consulting one tenth part of the official board or one hundreth part of the church membership, he puts up other ministers to preach to his people, all of whom wish the pastor to preach, which fact is well known to him. He heeds not their desire, but again puts up a man, of all others the most objectionable, to them. His people by dozens and scores appeal to him protesting against it and are told that if they do not wish to hear what he puts up to preach "they don't have to," which seems to mean they must go elsewhere or stay at home from their own church while his favorate preaches there.

To the faithful churchgoer who is accustomed to be in his place at his own church, this is certainly distasteful to say the least.

It is sad to know that many true christian hearts are now passing through an experience analogous to the foregoing similitude, and all the more sad because of the wide-spread and far reaching damage that must result before a time for relief can come around.

This article is neither the end nor the beginning of the end of the discussion of the relative positions of laymen in churches and political parties and those in authority.

14 CHARRED BODIES.

The Disastrous Wreck of Last Night May Find Six More Victims.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Trenton, N. J, Feb. 22.—Four more charred bodies were discovered this morning beneath the smouldering wreck of the Atlantic City flyer on the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania. This makes a total of fourteen.

The injured number thirty, of whom six more will probably die.

One of the worst collisions in the history of the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania Railroad occurred about 5:30 o'clock yesterday evening, at Rustings Siding near Bordentown, and about eight miles south of Trenton. The Nelly Bly express from New York for Atlantic City collided with passenger train No. 330, running from Camden to Trenton. The number of dead as far as known is 14, and the injured number upwards of 25.

COUNSEL IN IMP'CHMENT TRIAL

TRIAL OF THE CASE WILL BEGIN ABOUT MARCH 1st.

It Should Not Last Over Ten Days Even If Two Cases Are Made—County Sanitary Boards Created.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, Feb. 21.—The Senate passed on its third reading, the bill regarding judgments on homesteads, with an amendment that the statute of limitations shall be suspended, not only as to judgments under which the homestead is allotted, but as to all other judgments.

The bill revising corporation law passed. It is an important measure and will raise revenue by imposing a graduated tax on incorporations.

The divorce bill was made the special order for next Tuesday.

In the House.

A bill was introduced in the House by Robinson, to exempt the High Point schools from the State tax book act.

A bill passed incorporating the Thomasville and Eldorado Railway.

The oyster bill passed, and it gives a good law.

A bill passed making the term of county physicians two years, and creating a county sanitary board of two physicians and the county commissioners, the members of the board of health to serve six years.

The bill to charter a State Veterinary Association was tabled.

Special inquiries were made yesterday by your correspondent regarding the counsel for the prosecution and defense in the impeachment case. The lists are given officially as follows:

For the prosecution: William A. Guthrie, Theo. F. Davidson, James H. Merrimon, Charles M. Busbee, James H. Pou and Cyrus B Watson.

For the defence: Frank I. Osborne, Thomas J. Jarvis, Charles M. Cooke, F. H Busbee and W. P. Bynum, Jr.

Inquiry of the officals as to the date of the beginning of the trial brought this reply: "About March 1. I do not think it will occupy over ten days. It ought to be finished by March 10. It ought not to last longer than that even if the trials are separated; that is taking up one judge at a time. If they are tried together it seems to me the the matter can be disposed of in, say, five days. You know we disposed of the matter in the House in four days."

There will be nine counts in the indictment of the judges. One count is specific and of great interest. It charges Judges Furches and Douglas with deliberately setting out to nullify and usurp the powers of the Legislature by their decisions in what are known as the office-holding cases.

The board of managers of the impeachment, and their lawyers, save Davidson and Merrimon, met today, and prepared the bill of indictment against the judges. Cyrus B. Watson arrived yesterday afternoon from Winston.

President Venable, of the State University, was here yesterday. He says that institution asks the Legislature for $15,000 additional annual appropriation, (making $40,000), $7,000 for a water supply and $3,500 for repairs to buildings.

Havana, Feb. 22.—Gov. Wood has informed the authorities at Washington that the Cuban constitution was officially presented to him today and that he waits instructions whether to forward the document or hold it until after the relations between Cuba and the United States have been decided upon. The special committee on that is meeting today. Chairman Tamayo will submit to the committee Gen. Wood's letter referring to the relations of the two countries.

TIMELY SCRAPS FROM THE COURT ROOM.

Judge W. B. Councill, who is now winning just praise as a Superior Court Judge here, comes to us from over the Blue Ridge. He is a Democrat of popularity in his section, and was his party's candidate for Judge in 1894 when the Fusion deluge swept the State. He was disappointed at that great defeat, but not discouraged, and again won the nomination and the consequent election when the Democratic sun again arose. As a Judge he is humane, firm, but courteous. He deals kindly with prisoners and tempers his judgments according to the offense, and sustains the dignity of the court.

Certain kinds of lawyers are referred to as "case lawyers." They are those who make their preparations according to the particular case in hand, going to the books for reference to specific cases rather than for broad or general principles of law. This is due to a variety of causes, one no doubt being the inadequacy of preliminary education, another the different teaching now from that of former times, and another the multiplicity of the statutes. This last, it appears to a layman, has had the effect of crowding out the common law. Thus there are thousands of cases in which the knowledge of mere statutory law is all that is needed to try, and the men who have little idea of the fundamental principles of law or the history of its development, are at home. Such men, in the old days when books were little used, would have fared poorly at the bar.

The court room is a popular resort with the men folks. Men who never had a case in court in their lives and never expect to, find a lively interest in witnessing the proceedings. The questioning of the witnesses and the speeches of the lawyers are the attractions. Some men are attracted by one thing and some by another, but a great many are sure to be drawn by the filth that is too often to be heard. Another thing is the number of real funny things that occur. Of course these entertaining things come from the witness stand. Half of them arise from remarks made through ignorance and a good part from efforts to escape giving tesitmony.

Offenders who think that they are getting off lightly imagine it the proper thing to profusely thank the judge. They do this very warmly and with the feeling that they have found a friend. A case in point was that of a white man, Alec Jarrel, who had followed drink to his ruin. The charge was abandoment of his family, and the case was tried a day or two ago. After mistreating his wife and children for several years he had forsaken them, and they were being supported by a relative First the Judge was of a mind to sentence him to the roads, but he changed his mind, knowing this would do no good, and asked him if he would agree to leave the State and stay if judgment were suspended, and go immediately, and in case he did, when could he start? These terms were agreeable, and the deserter was glad to get them and to take advantage of them before they were withdrawn. Arising he said: "I accept your terms, Your Honor, and thank you, and I depart at once, good bye, sir." And he went.

Another case of abandonment was quite unique. A negro woman had her husband in jail. A friend of the man heard it and went to Mr. C. G Wright and asked him to appear for the man charged with abandonment, himself paying the attorney's fee. Mr. Wright began looking into the case and found that the woman had really abandoned her husband for another

Senator Teller's "Cuby."

Washington Post.

Senator Teller always pronounces "Cuba" as if it were written "Cuby." And thereby hangs a tale.

Mr Teller was born in Allegheny county, N. Y. The chief town in that county is Cuba, but from time immorial its people have called it "Cuby." Mr. Teller grew up with these people and "Cuba" has always been "Cuby" to him. Even Doorkeeper Glenn, of the House, who is the owner and editor of the Cuba Daily Patriot, always uses the local pronunciation.

SPEECH TO THE STATE NORMAL GIRLS.

Mr. McCulloch, a Native of this County, Now of Bladen, Speaks for the Committee.

Mr. E. F. McCulloch, a native of Guilford county (now of Bladen county), who was on the Educational Committee at the State Normal and Industrial College the other day, made the following remarks to the young ladies:

"Young Ladies:—I have always been proud of my native county, but I never realized until last night when I enjoyed your entertainment, how proud I was to be a native of this county. I have heard of the great work of this institution, but I never realized to what extent that work was being carried out until I saw that performance last night, and went over the place and examined in detail today.

"I hardly see how a young timid man like I am could be expected to make a speech before this audience. This scene, this picture, is the most grand, the most beautiful, most inspiring and most ennobling that it has ever been my pleasure to gaze upon. I have stood in Eastern North Carolina by the side of the old ocean when not a wave rippled across her placid surface; I have looked again when the storm was raging, when the billows heaved and rolled mountain high; I have seen the white caps breaking and the spray leaping out in the storm; I have listened to the deep-toned music of the waves as they lashed the shore, and I have been impressed with the grandeur and beauty of that scene. Again I have stood in Western North

PROPOSED ROAD BONDS.

A bill has been adopted, and will be discussed at a public meeting in the court house tomorrow, which will be presented to the Legislature with request for enactment, providing for continued road improvement in Guilford county.

The bill embraces all the machinery for submitting to the people a proposition to issue $100,000 of bonds for road improvement, and for the expenditure of the money in case it is voted. In fact, the bill will be a general road law for the county if it passes.

This is a matter of very grave concern, whether our people talk much of it or not. It is a subject which has to do more than any other with the development of the county. Great attention should be given this subject, and as a fleet-footed business proposition, our people should take hold of it whether they are interested or not.

General Weyler, the beast who had a great part in bringing down the wrath of the United States upon Spain, is a citizen that that unhappy country might get rid of with profit to itself. A dispatch today says that he is purposely deferring the solution of the present dangerous crisis for the purpose of preventing the conservatives from remaining in office.

A MIDNIGHT RESCUE.

Danville Register, 21st,

Mayor Woodling held court at midnight last night, his parlor being the scene of the examination, and as a result C. M. Roper alias C. D Hartley, claiming North Carolina as his home, is in jail as a suspicious character, carrying concealed weapons, but it was not the carrying of concealed weapons that took him there.

At about 10:30 o'clock last night the Hotel Burton was thrown into considerable excitement by the appearance of Mr Chas Evans, cashier of the Bank of Reidsville, N. C. He was inquiring for one C. M. Roper, a lumber and wood dealer, who had driven from Reidsville in the evening with a single rig.

There was only one party at the hotel who answered to the description given, but he had registered in an illegible scrawl, and had told the clerk it stood for C. D. Hartley.

Cashier Evans told a curious story. He had been faced by a stranger, in the bank, yesterday afternoon and asked to cash an apparently regularly made out voucher of the North Carolina State penitentiary, drawn on the State Treasury, in favor of T. B. Roper & Co., and payable to C. M. Roper, and by him properly endorsed. The voucher was for $268.70. The cashier refused to pay it without identification, which Roper or Hartley furnished in the person of a local livery stable keeper, and he got the money, immediately expending $150 of it for the horse and buggy with which he made the trip here. After he had gone, the cashier, feeling a bit uneasy, though everything appeared regular on the face, made some inquiries and found that the liveryman had known the party he vouched for but a few days, in Reidsville. He found further that though the stranger had distinctly stated that he was going south, he had turned about after getting out of town and gone toward Ruffin, or due north. He accordingly made his way here.

He found Mr. Morgan, an ally and sympathizer, and went to the stranger's room, where he confronted him and demanded the return of the money obtained.

Roper or Hartley denied having done anything wrong, and talked of being ready to die as well at this time as at some other. His revolver lay on the table. Mr. Evans told him that was a game two could play at and that he was prepared for trouble, at the same time getting between the man and his gun, whereupon the stranger went literally into his socks for the cash and turned over the horse and rig and the balance in bills and coin, whereupon the cashier declared himself satisfied and the stranger was apparently, as he neither asked for his voucher's return nor gave an address to which the money, providing the voucher proved good, could be sent. A curious omission.

In the meantime, the police had been notified and a reporter came on the scene. Chief Akers was called and talked the matter over with the cashier, and it was not seen at first what could be done in the matter, but the revolver business furnished a pretext, and the chief ordered the man's arrest.

Roper or Hartley was taken from his room and escorted by Officers Rickers and Hutson to Mayor Wooding's. Cashier Evans being summoned to appear also. The mayor heard the case and Officer Rickets swore out the warrant, which the mayor issued and remanded him to jail for further examination.

Though the crime, primarily, if crime it may prove, occurred in North Carolina, a late law covering a progressive crime, Mayor Wooding thinks, gives him jurisdiction, at least in the initial action in the case.

Hartley or Roper is a "morphine fiend" and was under the influence of the drug last night.

James W. Talbert was shot yesterday in the streets of McConnick, Abbeville county, S. C., where he had been told he must not go, or he would be killed. It is the outcome of a political feud which resulted in the Phoenix riots and murders in the fall of 1898 Before Tolbert was shot he is said, apparently without any reason, to have fired two shots at Young Martin, a visitor in the town, who had nothing to do with the row between Tolbert and the citizens of Mc Cormick.

Major Atherton is reported to have already refused £40,000 as a compensation for the injury he is said to have sustained. King Edward is said to be among those trying to arrange a settlement.

Commencing Monday night next, February 25th, Manager McAdoo, offers to the patrons of the Academy of Music for three nights, Frank Adams and his clever company, in a repertoir of plays that are entirely new to the theatre goers of Greeensboro, viz, Uncle Hez; Brother's Crimes, Pearl of the Sierras. Popular prices, 15, 25, and 35 cents, will prevail during the engagement. The Frederick, Md., Daily News, speaks as follows of Uncle Hez, the opening performance:

"Frank Adams Company, last night gave a splendid performance at City Opera House. A large crowd turned out to welcome Uncle Hez, and he was given a rousing reception when he made his first appearance.

"Uncle Hez is a comedy of much merit and Mr. Adams portrays the character in the strongest possible manner, never failing to delight the audience.

"The play abounds in amusing incidents. Not the least of which are those of Uncle Hez and the "Talkaphone." His work at the phone was a clever hit and sufficient to make the audience wish he would go to it oftener. The first act closes with one of the most thrilling of climaxes when Martin Thorn is surprised while robbing the store of Uncle Hez, a desperate encounter ensues between Thorn, Zac Mullen, Uncle Hez and Kate Marsden, in which Zac is killed and Thorn worsted.

"The trick house and mechanical effects fairly set the audience wild with delight, and the conclusion of this very funny scene was rewarded with round after round of applause.

"The specialties were clever and repeatedly enchored.

"Mr. Adams was well supported, each member of the company handling his or her part in the most approved style, the audience being especially well pleased with Master Frankie as Little Billie Wilkins."

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: "I had kept adding to a cold and coug in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of witho t permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at his time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

FAIRLY WARNED

By Jeanette Nichols Phillips.

(From the Washington Home Magazine, by Special Permission.)

TRACEY CHANNON and Annis Wydeman, residents of the same city, met for the first time one bright summer day at a certain ocean-side resort. A few evenings later they were chatting rather confidentially as they strolled along the beach in the twilight. He was saying:

"I have never yet found the one irresistible woman, and I do not intend ever to marry. But I'm fond of the ladies—nice ones—and I mean to enjoy their society so long as they are willing to take me in a frank, friendly way without expecting me to turn lover, sighing like a furnace after a few days' acqaintance.

"Here's my hand on that, Mr. Channon. I have long waited to know the man who isn't studying one's availability as a wife, or looking aghast if she casts a friendly glance in his direction."

"You and I need not be afraid of each other with such an understanding, need we?" asked Tracey.

"Not in the least. I shall enjoy you immensely, I know, for though I expect to marry when the right man presents himself, I do like to be myself without constantly standing guard against lovers and proposals."

"You can be yourself with me. I'll take my own heart risks, Miss Wydeman."

Annis had left her debutante season behind by less than a half dozen years. Tracey was older by a decade. She was an orphan of tempting fortune, and ranged at will between comfortable city quarters in winter and select seaside resorts in summer. As a bachelor he was independent as to fortune, and inclined to take life easily.

When Annis reached her room after the twilight stroll, she laughed and said to herself:

"Now, Miss Wydeman, you have been fairly warned, and if your rather unsusceptible heart should happen to prove a target for Cupid's markmanship you will have to make your own repairs. No gallant Sir Knight de Channon will take pity on you. I wonder if he warns off all the girls in the same way, and I'm glad I answered him just as I did. Perhaps that is his way of storming hearts. But I'll stand by the compact we've made and prove that one woman at least can enjoy a man's society and still withstand his charms. Never, never will I show the faintest sign of heart interest. I simply will not fall in love with Tracey Channon if I see him every day for 40 years."

Accordingly, during the remainder of the season and after their return to the city, whether Tracey came often or seldom Annis made him equally welcome. When he danced attendance on some belle of the hour she smiled as sweetly and remained as cordial as when he was paying devotion at her shrine. She had other admirers, but as they came tentatively, one by one, found her preoccupied, and saw Channon's semipossessive position, they went their way.

Months rolled by and Tracey grew apparently absorbed in Annis' society, more pointedly devoted, more appropriative. He even showed signs of contemplating matrimony seriously and favorably.

Annis was one day denouncing a husband of her acquaintance who, as she saw it, had manifested indifference to his wife's happiness.

"Your ideals are altogether too high," Tracey protested. "No ordinary human being would suit you. You are looking for an angel."

"Pardon the contradiction, but I am not looking for anything with a view to matrimony. And I may hold as high ideals as I please, for I can wait till I find the man to fit them. I am perfectly comfortable as I am, you know."

"I am happy to hear that. But no man, however earnest, will ever dare to offer himself to you, unless you cultivate less independence of manner, allow me to suggest."

"This is among the least of my troubles, but if ever I am seized with a fever for marrying I shall hie me to some enchanted land where all women are above par, even independent ones."

"When you are ready to go on that quest will you kindly let me know?"

"Oh, yes, Mr. Channon, I'll have it published in all the society papers and the reason therefor."

When their acquaintance was somewhat more than a year old, Tracey went away for an indefinite sojourn. Annis found his absence intolerable. The future without him loomed up a dreary blank. She was consumed with a jealous fear lest another might fill her place in his esteem, lest he might drop hers into the list of bygone friendships. Her misery and loneliness would not be subdued. She awoke one morning to the discovery that she was in love. She blushed before her mirror, shook her fist at in rage. She covered her face in shame that she had let her heart go where it was not wanted. She could not blame Tracey Channon. She would control herself whatever it cost. In spite of her efforts to forget, the painful yearning seized her at times so strongly that she longed to hate the man that she might be at peace with herself. She reviewed his character and conduct to find something incompatible, something to arouse her dislike. A few imperfections presented themselves, but no other man that she had ever known was so nearly blameless.

On Tracey's return to the city Annis tried to abate nothing of her old-time cordiality, but too often self-consciousness congealed it into awkward stiffness. Tracey apparently saw no change and took their friendship as a matter of course, as he had done all along.

Then Edna Stafford, a fresh young girl, came to join the little circle in which Annis found daily intercourse, and at first clung to the older girl for companionship and guidance. Tracey met Edna and apparently had at last found his soul's affinity. He was all devotion, tender and sweet. A love-lorn youth of 16 could not have shown more infatuation. When Annis and Edna were both with Tracey he often appeared to forget the former, or if the conversation became three-cornered he would throw into it just the element that aroused Annis' irratibility and grated on her sense of fairness. Then her sharpest sarcasms always fell upon the younger girl's head. At such times Tracey was so softly sympathetic with Edna, so contrived to set her defenseless innocence over against Annis' harshness as to prompt Edna to little impertinences and assumptions of his championship.

Annis could school herself to the thought that Tracey would never care for her as she did for him; she could take him at his word that he had no intention of marrying, but she suffered keenly with disappointment and a touch of disgust in seeing the one whose manly, somewhat serious bearing she had learned to admire, conducting himself in a manner so nearly silly. Moreover, he evidently took it for granted that her honest friendship and comradeship had turned to jealousy and hostility, and that there was open rivalry between her and Edna

This was too much. Saying nothing of her plans, Annis made speedy preparations for spending the winter in the south. She chose a resort not widely known and confided its address only to a brother in a distant city.

The new surroundings, the agreeable coterie of fellow guests diverted Annis' mind and allayed her agitation, so that she began to feel sure that the time of her going home would find her healthily indifferent to Tracey Channon's doings. One afternoon she with others was at the little railway station idly watching the newcomers on the down train. She saw Tracey Channon among them. Before he could see her she stepped behind a pillar and slipped away into the park. At the end of the winding myrtle path she found a seat. The old love surged up, pierced through and through by the sting of those last experiences at home. Had he come knowing she was there? She was tempted to fly away on the up train she heard rumbling through the forest. But no, this hour must settle the matter forever. She would not let her love for a man who had so plainly told her not to count on him assert itself while he was so near. She raged against her persistency in making himself so a part of her life. She tore at the roots of her affection in wrath and shame. Again a wave of ecstatic love rolled in upon her heart at the thought that he was so near; then she clinched her hands till the tendons strained, for she must go back to the hotel and meet Tracey Cnannon a conqueror of herself or able to meet him in the old friendly way.

When the paroxysm had spent itself Annis felt that she had aged in the hour. The songs of the birds seemed to be in a minor key. The strong contrast between the patches of sunshine and the shadows were to her typical of life with Tracey and existence without him. The sounds of voices and laughter wafted up from gay boating parties on the river brought back memories of happier days. She looked beyond them to the dim, gray further bank and felt that so must she look past happiness to a life as dull and monotonous as that uninviting shore. The long swaying moss banners, usually so soothing and suggestive of the poetry of motion, seemed to her that day more like mourning draperies, fitting accompaniment to this shutting down the coffin lid on happiness and hope. She saw herself a lonely, heart-weary woman—

A step on the sand and Tracey Channon stood at her side, his hand clasping hers, his face wearing its happiest expression, the most cordial words on his lips. Yet she could not comprehend a word that he was saying. Giving Annis no time to reply, he talked on rather excitedly, chiding her for running away from him, exclaiming over the beauties of the park and river. He suddenly stooped and scanned Annis' face, which she knew must betray the turmoil within. His own voice quavered and his face showed anxiety as he began, tenderly and slowly:

"My dear, I have come all the way down here to ask that we may be more than friends. I have loved you truly, fondly, for a long time."

"I do not understand you. You have said so often that you did not intend to marry; then—I—poor Edna will be heartbroken."

"Edna is engaged to a handsome young millionaire. I wanted to find out whether you cared for me even a little, dearest, I was suffering so. I do want to marry, and I want you, just you."

"Why couldn't you ask the question frankly, as a man?" Annis began, with a half sob, then sprang away and walked rapidly toward the hotel.

Tracey sat in utter perplexity and made no attempt to follow her. A few hours later, as he was standing apart from the other veranda loungers, apparently absorbed in the play of the twilight's glimmering on the river's responsive surface, a hand was slipped lightly under his arm and a smiling face looked up into his. Without a word he led Annis out into the lofty aisles of the park. Little fairy flecks chipped from moonbeams chased each other over the two slowly-moving forms, sometimes entwining them with wreaths of silvery light, propitiously bright, but not half so bright as the cord that bound two hearts together.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

RHEUMATISM—CATARRH—DISEASES CURED BY B. B. B.

It is the deep-seated, obstinate cases of catarrh and rheumatism that B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) cures. It matters not what other treatments. doctors, sprays, liniments, medicated air blood purifiers, have failed to do, B. B. B. always promptly reaches the real cause and roots out and drives from the bones, joints, mucuous membrane, and entire system the specific poison in the blood that causes rheumatism and catarrh. B. B. B. is the only remedy strong enough to do this and cure ond so there can never be a return to the symptoms. Don't give up hope, but try B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm) or 3 Bs.

For sale by druggists and Howard Gardner, in Greensboro, at $1 per large bottle, or 6 large bottles (full treatment) $5. To prove our faith in B. B B. we will send a trial bottle free to sufferers, so they may test the remedy at our expense. Address Blood Balm Co., Atlanta. Ga.

SPEECH TO THE NORMAL GIRLS

Carolina upon the topmost peak of the mountains and looked far down below into the valleys, making a beautiful panorama as they rolled away in the distance; and I have heard the impid waters of the little brookiet as it laughed and leaped on down the mountain side; and I have heard the music of the birds as their song rang out in the clear mountain air, and I have been impressed with the grandeur and beauty of that scene. But I am here to say that this scene today is more ennobling and more inspiring than them all, because I see before me the flower of North Carolina gathered together. I see the sparkling eye, the glowing cheek, and what is destined to be the ruling and governing power of this State of ours. When you educate and train young womanhood, you are training a power that holds in its hands the destiny of the nation. I know that, young ladies, when you complete your education here, you are going out all over North Carolina, that you are going to place a skilled hand under the uneducated and untrained of the State, the poor children of North Carolina, and that you are going to raise them up and place them on a higher scale.

"I want to say to you (and I feel that I can speak for the balance of this Committee) that whatever it is in the power of this Legislature to give you, you are going to get. During the last campaign most of us pledged ourselves to stand by the interest of education and we have but one thing

Forewarned, Forearmed.

The liability to disease is greatly lessened when the blood is in good condition, and the circulation healthy and vigorous. For then all refuse matter is promptly carried out of the system; otherwise it would rapidly accumulate—fermentation would take place, the blood become polluted and the constitution so weakened that a simple malady might result seriously.

A healthy, active circulation means good digestion and strong, healthy nerves.

As a blood purifier and tonic S. S. S. has no equal. It is the safest and best remedy for old people and children because it contains no minerals, but is made exclusively of roots and herbs.

No other remedy so thoroughly and effectually cleanses the blood of impurities. At the same time it builds up the weak and debilitated, and renovates the entire system. It cures permanently all manner of blood and skin troubles.

SSS

Mr. E. E. Kelly, of Urbana, O., writes: "I had Eczema on my hands and face for five years. It would break out in little white pustules, crusts would form and drop off, leaving the skin red and inflamed. The doctors did me no good. I used all the medicated soaps and salves without benefit. S. S. S. cured me, and my skin is as clear and smooth as any one's."

Mrs. Henry Siegfried, of Cape May, N. J., says that twenty-one bottles of S. S. S. cured her of Cancer of the breast. Doctors and friends thought her case hopeless.

man, and that this one was in jail in a cell adjoining her husband, and the attorney had a witness who could be [illegible] this man, while carrying food to him, that she would get up enough money to get him out of jail. So when the trial came on and the woman went on the stand, Mr. Wright, the husbands's lawyer, brought out the facts, and showed that the woman herself was really the one who was guilty of abandonment, and the judge dismissed the case. The petty cases which the negroes carry into court are, as in this case, too often trumped up affairs for a purpose. The lower class of the negroes swear right and left as suits their purpose, and with many of them an oath is no more than a straw.

A negro hack driver was in court yesterday on a charge of fighting. He conducted his own case, and examined the witnesses so well as to clear himself. Allelated with his success, he went to Deputy Clerk Rankin and wanted to prove his ticket and get pay for attendance. Mr. Rankin told him that there was no doubt about his presence at court, but the State had not made any provision for the payment of citizens who attended court under such circumstances.

HOW TO GAIN FLESH

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food, which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking Scott's Emulsion.

You will find it just as useful in summer as in winter, and if you are thriving upon it don't stop because the weather is warm.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample its agreeable taste will surprise you.

A RUSH FOR AUTOS.

Manufacture and Sales Have Increased Over a Hundred Per Cent. During Past Year.

The year in automobiles has been a good one, but even with its increase of about 100 per cent. in the manufacture the business was not entirely gratifying to manufacturers. At the outset the makers looked for tremendous sales, but with the unsettled condition in business, generally due to declining values, many purchasers held back. Prices of autos, however, were well held throughout the year, and in some instances advanced. The automobile is not a novelty, allowing a wide margin of profit to the maker, as it is essential that all parts of the machinery included in its construction be of equal merit, which prevents inferior productions and keeps prices up.

The demand for pleasure vehicles represented only about 25 per cent. of the total increase in the output during the year, which indicates their growing popularity. The striking growth was in the output of delivery and truck autos. One of the features that developed during the year was the formation of several bus and truck companies for the purpose of handling country passengers and farm products to and from towns. It has developed that this business is a success, and will eventually expand to vast proportions. The export demand has also grown materially, and the American make of every description is going to all parts of the world, even to France, where they originated.

RILEY AND THE VIOLIN.

Why the Well-Known Hoosier Poet Has a Weakness for the Instrument.

It has been noticed that at all the entertainments given by James Whitcomb Riley there is always a violin solo on the programme. There is never an exception to the rule. His manager says the custom is followed out of deference to Riley, although it is not known that he ever requested such a favor. There is a story back of that. It appears that Riley's ambition early in life was to be a violinist. He is quoted as saying that an accident spoiled a mighty fine fiddler to make a second-rate poet, but then people may not agree with him on that score. When he was a young man he exercised a fiddle a good deal. It is said that when he began parcticing out on the front porch the neighbors went in and closed the doors and windows, no matter how hot it might be, but that may be a slander. At any rate, Riley wanted to be a violinist, and was getting greatly wrapped up in his studies when he met with an accident that caused the loss of his left thumb. This made it impossible for him to pursue his violin practice, and the songs that were struggling for utterance through the medium of the violin found escape through verse, and the world is better off on account of his accident. Riley's managers know of his weakness for the fiddle, and that is the reason there is always a violin solo in the entertainment programme.

New Competitor for Wheat Trade.

The far northwest has entered into competition with the Mississippi valley for the wheat trade of the world. A British steamer has loaded wheat at Tacoma for Liverpool via the Suez canal. The Cape Horn route is shorter, but is less desirable because of the cost of and difficulty in procuring coal.
